GALVANIC FACIAL TREATMENT

Galvanic treatment is a very successful skin care treatment. It’s extremely popular due to the excellent results shown on TV. Unsurpassed Anti-Aging Results with immediate cumulative results. It can be used for different skin types and conditions. To get the best result with galvanic treatment two different basic steps are required. After receiving a Galvanic Facial Treatment the energy effects will still be working on the skin for an additional 2 days post treatment, making any products applied to skin work 10 times better and deeper in the dermis layers of the skin for an additional 2 days.

This facial treatment is often applied by using metal probe sliding over the skin with a specialized serums or ampoules. The serum or lotion has two purposes:
- To make the facial metal probe slide smoothly over your face
- The lotion or serum contains nutrition that can be absorbed by your skin using the galvanic machine

Cleansing Step or Desincrustation
The first treatment is designed to deep cleanse the pores of the skin and degrease oily areas. Usually a cleansing gel is applied. This cleansing step is used to remove the oily skin areas such as acne and pimples. Some skin care specialist’s call this step Desincrustation

Nutrition Step or Iontophoresis
The second treatment involves the re-balancing of the skin from oily to dry including sensitive. Now you need to apply a serum or organic lotion with rich vitamins. The galvanic machine will use postive and negative ions to push the nutrition into you skin. This galvanic treatment enhances the skin absorption. Depending on type of serum, it will help to re-balance, normalize and hydrate the skin. This is a called the Iontophoresis.

Carefully selecting your serum or lotion.
As the galvanic machine is extremely powerful, the result can be affected by the facial products that are chosen.

Galvanic Electric Current Machine is more powerful than a portable handheld home spa device. It is very important that all metal or jewelry is not worn during a Galvanic Facial. People that have metal implants, heart bypass, pregnant women and seizures are not good candidates for the Galvanic Electric Current Machine. The battery operated galvanic devices are a better choice for people whom are not good candidates for the Galvanic Electric Current Machine.

What Is Electroporation?
Electroporation is a method of creating temporary pores in the skin by the application of a gentle electric charge. These channels allow skin care ingredients to penetrate the skin 100 to 10,000 times more effectively that just dabbing a cream on top of untreated skin. Different kinds of products, however, use different techniques of electroporation.

The Two Approaches to Galvanic Skin Care
The two processes of empowering the active ingredients of skin care products to reach deep in the skin (about 10 mm, or 4/10 of an inch) are:
- Electroosmosis, which increases the rate at which water flows through the skin, and Iontophoresis, a process of gently shocking skin pores to make them wider and more receptive to skin care products.

There is actually very little moisture even in the best-moisturized skin. Most of the outer layer of skin consists of a thick wall of protein-filled cells known as corneocytes. In between the corneocytes there is a mixture of about 50 per cent ceramides (the same chemicals you will see listed on the label for moisturizers), 25 per cent cholesterol (the same cholesterol that is in your arteries, only this time as a water-repellant), and 25 per cent water.

There just is not a lot of water in healthy skin. If water flow is stimulated, however, water-soluble ingredients are carried deeper into the skin. Many skin care ingredients are not water-soluble. To increase the absorption of "lipophilic" ingredients, iontophoresis gives the pores a gentle shock. They open just a little, and become temporarily more permeable to fat-soluble ingredients. A tiny current, less than enough to power a penlight, is enough to help vastly more of these ingredients get into the skin to do their work.
